83 tons. Contrary to previous times, the Soviets immediately paid the freight charges of 300 eastmarks and the money for the use of the tank cars amounting to 71.4 eastmarks.⁴

6. As previously assured, the civilian agency located in Schoenefeld next to the HO (Trade Organization) shop, was an administrative agency of the civilian airlines. Schienemann (fnu) was the interpreter and representative of this civilian airline agency when conferring with the Reichstahn. The freight bills were paid to the Reichstahn either in cash or they were settled by vouchers prior to the delivery of the goods. The previously reported Soviet officer Ketzepin (fnu) was a member of the agency and, like other officers of the unit, wore black epaulets on a black uniform. He went to the USSR on 9 November on grounds of sickness.⁵
7. On 11 November, 19 twin-engine aircraft and 2 biplanes were parked at Schoenefeld airfield. Individual take-offs and landings were made by five twin-engine aircraft which rolled to a stop after the landing and again took off from the stopping point after 2 or 3 minutes. Therefore, only one third of the total runway length was available for the take-off. The taxiway which had previously been under construction was utilized in November.
8. Motor vehicles observed entering and leaving the field included trucks, radio truck and special truck loaded with a mast, about 2.5 meters long, with a rotary disk on top.⁴
9. [REDACTED]
1. Comment. Schoenefeld airfield is occupied by a transport regiment equipped with 10 to 12 Li-2s and a transport and courier squadron of the GCPG equipped with about 8 Li-2s. The number of 42 Li-2s observed at the field on 28 October 1953 probably includes aircraft of the transport regiment from Alt Loennewitz airfield temporarily stationed in Schoenefeld. Schoenefeld airfield is also used by commercial aircraft of the Satellite countries.
2. Comment. The incoming construction material shipments are dispatched by the forwarding agency of the Twenty-Fourth Air Army, and are consigned to Captain Ivanov, deputy chief of the supply unit of Schoenefeld airfield. Poyetsukov and Zirovov are reported for the first time.
3. Comment. Captain Malkov is known as auditor at Staaken airfield, the former location of the transport regiment.
4. Comment. Pavlov is the consignee of fuel shipments which belongs to the OATB of the transport regiment from Staaken airfield. Esayetsuk is the consignee of fuel shipments for probably the OATB of the courier squadron permanently stationed in Schoenefeld. Badiyaev is the dispatcher of fuel shipments from Valtan.
